JANUARY 11, 2027

INSTRUCTOR: Brian Tully is retired from the Massachusetts State Police in 2026 at the rank of Lieutenant. He spent most of his law enforcement career conducting and supervising homicide investigations and has extensive experience in criminal investigations and digital forensics. He is a recognized expert in cell phone forensics and cell site location information (CSLI) analysis and their application to criminal investigations.

COURSE DESCRIPTION:

This one-day course will provide detectives and investigators of all experience levels a working foundation to digital forensics and its role in modern investigations. Participants will learn how to identify, preserve, and leverage digital evidence from cell phones, vehicles, cloud services, and Internet of Things devices. The course covers critical legal considerations, including search warrant requirements and recent case law, as well as best practices for working with forensic examiners. Through real-world examples, detectives will develop the skills to integrate digital evidence into investigative strategies. Attendees will leave with tools, references, and the confidence to handle digitalevidence in their own investigations.

TOPICS INCLUDE:

- Introduction to Digital Evidence and Golden Rules
- Working with Digital Forensic Examiners
- Cell Phone Records
- Acquiring and Analyzing Records
- Emerging Technology: Internet of Things (IOT)
- Where and How to Get the Data
- Legal Considerations
- Case Law: Stay Ahead of the Courts

COST: $225 PER STUDENT
